DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 2-11, 13-26 are pending in this application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 2-11, 13-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dangi et al (US 5,231,492) in view of Liu et al (US 6,434,139 B1).

Claims 4, 5, 9, 15, 16 and 20-23, Dangi et al discloses an article, system and method of communication comprising: determining one of plural rates to code data for communication over a network; encapsulating the data in a packet having a quality-of-service indicator field based on the determined one of plural rates (FIG. 8, 9 shows the audio frame format of different bit numbers, col. 3, lines 5-15).

{Dangi et al teach according to column 3, lines 5-15 an adaptive type coding is performed for outputting the audio data as a plurality of code sounds with different coding bit rates. The single most suitable coding bit rate is selected in accordance with the content of the transmission, so that audio quality does fluctuate, but the sound is never interrupted and transmission can be performed at the quality of the picture and sound.”}

Dangi et al further teach a controller adapted to store each unit of data in one of the plurality of queues based on the quality of service indicator value in the unit of data (see figure 25, col. 10, lines 18-21).

Although Dangi et al does not teach transmitting the packet over a wireless link and encapsulating the data in an Internet Protocol packet. This limitation is well known in the art and is teach by Liu et al (see abstract).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to implement the method of Dangi et al in a wireless network to allow real-time information to communication across wireless networks.

Claims 2-3, 6, 10-11, 13, 17-19 and 22, Dangi et al teach setting a first value for the quality of service indicator field if a first rate is determined; and setting a second value for the quality of service indicator field if a second rate is determined (see figure 8, 9 and col. 8, lines 10-20).

Claims 7, 8, 14 and 24, Dangi et al further teach determining one of plural rates to code data comprises determining one of plural rate to code real-time data (Dangi et al teach a system and method for coding and decoding audio and video, see figure 25).
